

OPERATIONAL SAFETY SAFETY CERTIFICATIONS TRIMMING PRESSES

PREVENTION. PRECAUTION. SATISFACTION.

Safety first

Worst case: operating ban! The governmental safety regulation requires that specific safety measures for presses are in place. Many press end users are unaware of the regulations and risk machine shut-down.

Production managers are responsible for maintaining the safety standard of presses. The regulation demands that every year a professional safety check needs to be conducted and documented. Presses are classified as "dangerous machines" and therefore are under particular observation.

Assistance by Kurtz will ensure that the management is not at risk of safety issues and high penalties.

Certified machine experts are able to provide professional safety audits with certification for Kurtz and as well as other OEM presses. Kurtz technicians are experienced and officially empowered to issue the certificates.

In a world of changing regulations and guidelines, Kurtz will assist in having the appropriate safety measures in place.

Results that will move you forward

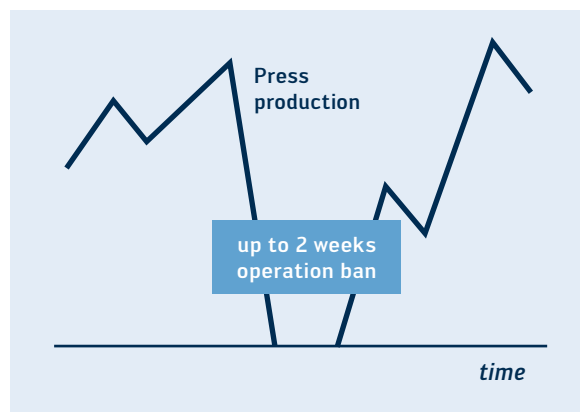

Issues

In case presses are not certified to comply with current safety aspects there is a high risk to fail official audits.

Implementation

- Certified Kurtz Service Technicians will review all safety relevant factors of your press
- In case all safety measures are in place, you will receive the official certificate
- Missing safety aspects will be documented on a list with required actions

Down time scenario

Time between machine shutdown due to missing safety certificate and receiving the new certificate after safety audit can be up to 2 weeks.
